

Government of the Northwest Territories Response to the
*NWT Action Plan on Family Violence (2003-2008)

A Framework for Action

October 2004

Overview

Family violence is a serious and troubling issue in the Northwest Territories (NWT). Over the past few years, a number of actions have been taken to increase public awareness, support victims of violence and address the root causes of the problem. However, these efforts have not been enough – family violence continues to devastate the lives of many people and families.

This paper represents the Government of the Northwest Territories' (GNWT's) Response to the NWT Action Plan on Family Violence (2003-2008) prepared by the Coalition Against Family Violence.

The Government of the Northwest Territories recognizes the hard work and dedication of the Coalition Against Family Violence in researching, developing and testing the NWT Action Plan on Family Violence (2003-2008). Through their efforts, there is the solid basis for a plan within which all individuals, organizations and governments can work together to decrease the incidence of family violence in the NWT, thus improving the lives of all people affected. We would like to take this opportunity to thank the Coalition for taking the initiative and putting together a comprehensive approach to what is one of our most difficult challenges.

Some adults and children have learned violent behaviors over generations and it will take a significant amount of dedicated time to make real change. Shelter usage indicates a disturbing trend in the NWT. Currently, shelter usage is five times the national average. As well, we know that many cases of family violence go unreported. As a result, we do not have a clear picture of the overall impact of family violence in the communities across the NWT.

The NWT Action Plan on Family Violence indicates that many partners have been and continue to be involved in the work to reduce the incidence of family violence in the NWT. The GNWT is committed to working in partnership with communities, regions, organizations and individuals to decrease family violence in the NWT. This work must be a priority for us all.

It is important to recognize that the GNWT can only commit to actions that are within its mandate. Aboriginal and Federal Governments also have key roles to play through their social programs. Continued collective participation is welcomed and necessary.

It is going to take everyone in the NWT to reduce and eliminate family violence. Partnerships between organizations, protocols for response to family violence, and a reduction in societal tolerance are all good first steps. This means that communities, governments and individuals need to take a zero tolerance stance on family violence.

This response is intended to build and/or strengthen partnerships with other organizations, communities and governments, so that together we can work towards the complete elimination of all forms of violence in NWT society. The NWT Action Plan on Family Violence made 25 recommendations in eight major areas. These areas include:

1. Policy and Legislation
2. Working Together
3. Capacity Building
4. Training
5. Prevention
6. Education and Awareness
7. Services
8. Monitoring, Evaluation and Accountability

This GNWT response lists actions that it plans to initiate in each of the eight areas reflected in the Coalition's Action Plan. The GNWT's Framework for Action builds on the work that has been done to date and expands the attention being given to issues related to family violence.

Links to other Government Initiatives

The actions outlined in this response are consistent with the directions established in recent GNWT documents, including the Government of the Northwest Territories Strategic Plan, June 2004 and The GNWT Response to the Draft Social Agenda (2002)

These broad directions documents outline key principles and goals of planned GNWT activity and provide a context for the actions planned to address family violence.

Conclusion

The Government of the Northwest Territories recognizes that family violence is a serious social issue that must be addressed by the people of the NWT. Through dedication, commitment and hard work we can make a difference and reduce the prevalence of family violence. We can also improve support to victims and children that currently live with family violence in their lives. The GNWT is committed to continue working in partnership with individuals, communities, organizations and other governments to make a significant difference. Everyone has a role to play.
